Stonelaw U. F. A.

A meeting of the Local will be held in the Minor School on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 18th, at 1 o'clock.

Just a word to the members who wish to make these afternoon meetings a success: "Turn out as strong as you can, and remember that the U. F. A. is going to be the means of solving your problems better than any other organization in this Province."

Thos. Partridge, Sec'y.

This Local has to buy some Oats, and we don't want to send away for some unless we have to. We are willing to give the farmer the same price as it would cost us to ship them in. If you have any oats for sale come to our meeting, on Saturday, and get acquainted. If you cannot come leave word at the News Office or communicate direct with T. Partridge, Sec'y., or S. W. Hjelle, Treas.

Important Farmers' Meeting

On Friday, Feb. 10th, at 2.30 p. m. a meeting will be held in Monitor by the various U. F. A. Locals and other representatives from the unorganized districts, for the purpose of making recommendations for the various Government appointments throughout the district, also to frame a road programme to place before the Commission. Every district should see that they are represented at this meeting, and voting delegates will be selected from those in attendance.

KIRRIEMUIR

The dances given by Jim Kee last Friday, was well attended and everybody seemed to have a good time as they tripped the light fantastic to the good music furnished by the Monitor Orchestra.

A extra large crowd was in town last Saturday and quite a few attended the joint meeting of the U. F. A., U. G. G. and the Rural Credit Society, to hear the oat question discussed.

A couple of rinks from here will attend the Coronation Bonspiel, along with Charlie Horsch Feb. 20th to 25th.

NOTICE

If you have any cattle or hogs to sell, see me. Will buy at any time.

Local Happenings

J. H. McGirr made a business trip to Edmonton this week.

B. L. Harley returned home, on Saturday, after spending a month or so down in Calgary.

The Star Cafe is now making bread, for public sale, and selling some three for a quarter.

Somers—To Arthur and Mrs. Somers, on Wed. January 18th, a daughter.

Mrs. C. Harley returned from Altario, on Saturday, after a visit at the home of her son.

Don't forget the "Homey time which is promised you for the evening of Feb. 14th in the Co-operative Church. The evening will be variously spent in games and a short program. Refreshments will be served.

A good time is promised you—he on hand to enjoy it. The price of admission is quite within your means—25c per head.

Applications for the position of Sec. Treas. of the local School Board were passed on at the meeting of the Trustees, held last week. Mrs. Glenn Beamer was appointed for the year.

The W. A. will present in the Big Hall, Monitor, Friday Feb. 24th at 8 p. m. a Comedy in three acts entitled "Tennis Cash" invariably in advance."

Jas. A. Hayes reports that there has been a considerable drop in coal prices.

The Sunding Creek hockey team failed to appear last week and a large crowd was disappointed.

Along about the middle of March a series of meetings will be held, in Monitor, for the purpose of organizing Boys' and Girls' Clubs, in conjunction with the School Fair.

Both Dominion and Provincial organizers will attend these meetings and speak on various live farm topics.

It has been suggested that the U. F. A. be urged to put on a Farmers' Chautauque at the same time in connection with these meetings.

The probable dates are March 14, 15 and 16.

Canada's Needs

No. 6—Scientific Research

In the course of the several articles which have appeared in this column under the above general heading, some of Canada's needs have been enumerated but only in the most general way has any attempt been made to suggest ways and means of meeting and providing for those needs. Recently, however, a little pamphlet has been issued by the Honorary Advisory Council for Scientific and Industrial Research which merits the serious consideration of the Canadian people and is worthy of the widest possible circulation. It presents at least one very practical suggestion how some of the needs referred to, more particularly in the fourth article of this series, can be met. It is, therefore, proposed to quote at some length from the pamphlet in question which is entitled "Research and the Problems of Unemployment, Business Depression and National Finance in Canada."

"I am not a protectionist but I say this," declared a statesman now dead, "The variety of work carried on among the citizens of Canada should be as comprehensive as possible."

"Not because we are thus enabled to boast of the number of our trades—that would be mere vanity."

"Not merely because our country should be able to fill as many as possible of its own needs without having to ask foreign aid."

"Not merely because we should learn as soon as possible to finish the raw material with which Nature endowed us—rather than confess our helplessness by asking foreigners to finish them for us and giving them the wages and the profit on our raw materials."

"Not merely because our country should as soon as possible escape from dependence for its prosperity on any one kind of production but should divide the risk among many."

"But because Canada should retain her most ambitious sons and daughters within her own boundaries by encouraging for their sakes that variety of occupation from engineering to farming—from chemistry to literature—which, if they want the highest awards and honors, they are still compelled nowadays to seek abroad."

One of the serious drains on the strength of the Dominion of Canada is the annual loss of engineers, chemists, scientific farmers and technical experts—whose training paid for by Canadians in Canadian schools and universities supported by Canadian public money, thus goes out to make foreign countries rich and place Canada further in their debt for foreign goods and services.

Monopolies of knowledge—that is, monopolies of special branches of technical knowledge—constitute one of the most powerful weapons of trade today.

Secret agreements, combines, trusts and the ordinary method of "conspiracies in the restraint of trade," become very mild and impotent weapons when compared to such formidable instruments as, for example, a secret chemical formula that might be scribbled on the back of a calling card.

In the bloodless wars for international trade it is the armies of chemists and engineers that must be mobilized, drilled and directed against the paraps of unknown scientific facts. Export duties, credit leagues, intelligence departments, persuasive salesmanship and even the magic of a great flag, cannot win or cannot hold, for long, trade for a country whose producers are not armed with scientific knowledge of their work.

A great camera manufacturing concern in the United States is able to dominate its field in at least half the world because it knows more scientific secrets of that trade than anyone else. Because, if a new concern started in opposition, it need only reach into its pigeon holes for some new formula—not otherwise convenient to exploit at present—by which to raise its product one step beyond the competition of the would-be rival.

So in steel-making! So in the manufacture of electrical apparatus! So in textiles! So in chemistry! So in agriculture! So in every important branch of human industry!

So in Canada—as compared to other nations—everyone of our industries is threatened, and must ultimately fall under the thrall of foreign domination unless it keeps pace with the advances in technical knowledge.

So, unless we master all that is to be known regarding the nature and possibilities of our vast supplies of varied raw materials, Canadians must ultimately find themselves at the mercy of foreigners who know how to prepare our riches for purposes of commerce.

Fifty concerns in the United States retain research departments at costs ranging from $25,000 to $2,000,000 a year. In England, France and Germany, the race for technical knowledge for purposes of trade gathers speed. The mere digger-out of raw materials gets the pay of a laborer. The nation that can finish its raw materials trebles and quadruples its rewards.

The question is—Shall Canada keep reasonably in pace with the modern movement? Shall Canada add to her natural possessions a superior knowledge of how to use them?

Can the needed variety of occupations for ambitious Canadian sons and daughters be maintained unless she does make places for such knowledge and encourage those who extend it?

Can the burdens of Canadian taxation and the evils of unemployment be offset if Canada, in her struggle for markets and for good returns on her wares, does not possess herself of the instrument of technical knowledge?

Game Is Played Every Day in the Year At Victoria

There are no better known golf courses in the Dominion than those at Victoria on Vancouver Island, no doubt due to the fact that the game is played every day in the year.

One of the delights of the winter visit to the Coast is to enjoy again the favored summer sport. It will, therefore, come as a pleasant announcement to know that the Canadian Pacific Railway has completed arrangements whereby guests of the Empress Hotel at Victoria will be accorded playing privileges on the excellent 18-hole Colwood Course.

WINTER WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Our Canadian winters are exceedingly hard on the health of little ones. The weather is often so severe that the mother cannot take the little ones out for an airing. The consequence is that baby is confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms; takes cold and becomes cross and peevish. Baby's Own Tablets should be given to keep the little ones healthy. They are a mild laxative which regulate the stomach and bowels and thus prevent colds. Great Britain In The Role Of Friend Unto Every Nation

The following article on Great Britain's foreign policy is taken from the Chicago News, and coming from an American source has an added significance:

British diplomacy of today is the precise opposite of American diplomacy. American diplomacy shrinks from making the United States the special friend of any foreign nation. British diplomacy might almost be said to jump at the chance of making Great Britain the special friend of every foreign nation all the way around the whole circle of the important nations of the world.

Who is the best and closest friend of Japan? Great Britain. The Anglo-Japanese alliance is gone and whatever menace may have been leveled by that alliance at the United States is removed. But who can believe that in the daily routine of far eastern international affairs there will be any such spirit of historic co-operation and of mutually recognized territorial interests between Japan and the United States, or between Japan and France, as between Japan and Great Britain? The latter is the one white nation that has continuously befriended Japan in the twentieth century.

What foreign nation is also most steadily expressive of special regard and respect for the United States? What foreign nation is most unflinchingly devoted to public discussions of a special understanding or special accord or special agreement or bond or tie or link—or whatever word Americans may prefer—with the United States? Undoubtedly Great Britain. Washington may recoil from London's advances. London gallantly continues them and, so to speak, sends flowers every day.

What nation does most for France? The British may quarrel at times with the French; but what nation is the only nation that really in any degree is helpful to the French in collecting the indemnity from Germany? Great Britain.

But what nation sticks up for Germany and says all the time that Germany cannot pay quite so much? What nation mitigates French wrath and tempers the French storm to the German lamb? Certainly not the United States; certainly not Japan. Italy does it a bit, but Italy is not strong. The strong shield of Germany when Germany is beaten down too much is the country that bottled up the German fleet. Germany in the German hymn of hate had "one foe and one alone"—Britain.

Today it has one friend and one alone—Britain.

Finally, where does Russia find a helping hand? What great nation first makes a treaty with Soviet Russia? What nation proceeds to introduce Soviet Russia to respectable international society? What nation but that hearty friend of the world—Great Britain?

It has sometimes been remarked that the diplomacy of a sailor is to have a girl in every port. Great Britain is a maritime nation. Its diplomacy at the present time is very maritime. What are those "wiles"? A child could detect them. The British make no effort to conceal them. They are not "wiles." They are perfectly forthright public efforts to be on good terms—and, if possible, on terms of mutual services and benefits—with every country importantly touching any fragment or filament of the immense, delicately balanced web of British power throughout the world.

When the web was not threatened by modern winds of "self-determination" within the British Empire, Britain followed a policy of circumstances Britain now follows a policy of splendid universality.

Crops in the Yukon

Satisfactory Results Reported in Cereals and Vegetables

The experimental sub-station at Sweet Creek in the Yukon is the most northerly of the Dominion Experimental Farms System. The facts to be gathered from a report made by the superintendent will draw attention to the capabilities of that country for farming and are particularly interesting on that account. Ten acres were seeded in 1919 with oats, peas and red clover. The oats and peas were cut for hay, but the red clover was left for ploughing under and was winter killed. In 1920 the same area gave a heavy growth of oats and peas, a light growth of red clover, and a medium growth of sweet clover. A satisfactory yield of rye and buckwheat is recorded. Western rye grass also proved satisfactory. Gratifying results are expected from alfalfa and red clover. One fortieth of an acre sown to each variety of wheat yielded 75 lbs. of Marquis, or at the rate of 50 bushels to the acre, 90 lbs. of Huron, at the rate of 60 bushels to the acre, and 32 lbs. of Prelude, at the rate of 34 2/3 bushels to the acre. Victory oats sown to the same extent yielded 90 lbs. or over 105 bushels to the acre and Banner oats 114 lbs. or 134 bushels and 4 lbs. to the acre. Peas yielded 32 lbs. or 21 3/4 bushels to the acre. Detroit beets, Jersey Wakefield and Copenhagen Market cabbage, Chautauque and Earliest Short Horn carrots, all varieties of celery, Iceberg, Grand Rapids Forcing and C.E.F. lettuce, Double Curled Parsley, Thomas Saxton, Straggle and English Wonder peas, and Canadian Gem turnips all did well. Relative to the celery the report states that it was probably as good as could be produced in any part of the world.

The Livestock Prospects

Livestock Branch at Ottawa States That Market Is Becoming Steady

It is interesting to note from the weekly returns of the livestock branch at Ottawa that the year commenced with rather hopeful prospects, the demand being fairly brisk with prices generally, although below what they were last year at the same time. It inclined to show an upward tendency. Especially was this true of the market at Toronto, where sheep were quoted the second week of the year at $14.50 compared with $13 for the first week and $13.35 for the corresponding week of last year. Cattle, calves and sheep all showed a rise for the second week compared with the first, but hogs, which were received in comparatively large numbers, manifested a little weakness. The prices at Toronto ran: Cattle $9, calves $14, hogs $11.35, and sheep $14.50; at Montreal, cattle $7, calves $12, hogs $12 and sheep $9.50; and at Winnipeg, cattle $7.25, calves $10, hogs $9.60 and sheep $9. These returns, made to the branch, cover the markets at Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton, Prince Albert and Moose Jaw.

Do Your Planning

Now Is a Good Time to Think of Spring Gardening

The jokers and paragraphers have a lot of fun out of the man who is now thumbing over the seed catalogues looking for his spring assortment. Never mind the jokers—just keep right on with the thumbing business. There may be quite a lot of cold weather, snow and ice yet, but you can sit at the back window and pretty much picture what will take place when the sun moves a few notches back our way. And if you have your plans all laid out you won't be the laughing stock of the community by dashing off to the nearest corner store on the 24th of May morning to buy a package of lettuce and one of onion seed.—London Advertiser.

Another Alarm

People Should Avoid the Heavy Sunday Dinner, Says Authority

The Sunday dinner has become so fixed an institution and vested interest that the dinner promises to rival the Sabbath as a social fixture. The custom of having a better dinner on Sunday than on any other day of the week not improbably owes its origin and continuance to folks having more leisure on the rest day than on any work day. But the medical brotherhood has cast its baleful eye on the cherished institution of the English-speaking peoples.

The London Times' medical editor, alluding to the Sunday dinner of John Bull solemnly warns him that then, even more than on weekdays, he eats too much. Mr. Bull's dinner on the Sabbath generally comprises beef, Yorkshire pudding—a solid "piece of resistance"—vegetables, pastry, cheese and alcoholic drinks. Such a dinner, saith the doctor, is for the "navy" or ditchdigger, but not for the man who loafs after eating it.—Medicine Hat News.

An Old-Fashioned Notion

Relative Salaries and Length of Experience

Premier Greenfield says he doubts the wisdom of adopting a minimum salary of $1,200 for teachers who are just beginning their work, and inclines to the view that salaries should depend upon length of experience and proven ability. He will be accused of reactionary tendency. The claim is being urged in these days that whoever holds down a job should draw a fixed and generous wage for doing so, regardless of experience and demonstrated fitness. The Premier's view is sensible, but that will not save him from a run in with the propounders of the "advanced" idea.—Edmonton Bulletin.

Swine Production Can Be Made Profitable For Prairie Farmers

The following statement on the swine situation, advocating a brood sow on every farm, has been issued by the ministers of agriculture for three prairie provinces:

"Farming in the prairie provinces today has reached a condition which causes farmers to ask themselves: 'What can be grown profitably?' rather than to consider what they would like to grow. In this respect they are in the same predicament as farmers in almost any other part of the world. The consuming public has gone on a 'buying strike' against expensive manufactured products. This decreased demand for goods has caused unemployment and thereby lowered the purchasing power of all wage earners. The purchasing ability of our great markets for farm produce is further contracted because of the heavy war debts and the present exchange difficulties. The question then is for our western farmers, 'What can we raise profitably?'

"It is no longer a question of sowing every acre possible in order to help win the war, nor is there the inducement of a big price for grain. It is no longer a question of increasing our herds of cattle in order to meet the after war demand from stock depleted countries which unfortunately are unable to buy our animals, but it is emphatically a question of growing anything, whether grain or livestock, which will pay for the cost of production and leave a little surplus for the producer to pay debts or replace worn out equipment. In other words, it is no longer the ambition of the farmer to make a fortune; the average man considers himself lucky if he is making a living. Where there is water and shelter and feed, a few milk cows, a flock of hens, and a litter or two of pigs per annum, will help to pay the operating expenses of the farm and insure food and clothing and fuel; while in the good years, when nature produces a surplus of grain or other crops, the revenue from these will provide a convenient surplus for capital requirements.

"All one-crop countries are unbalanced and unreliable. Fruit producing districts or cotton districts have their problems as well as grain growing or ranching countries. The nearer the family on the farm can come to growing their own food products, the less will their expenses and worries be, and the greater their assurance of comfort and healthfulness. According to the 1916 census more than 50,000 farmers in the prairie provinces had no milk cows, nearly as many had no poultry, while over 85,000 had no pigs. There were then 218,000 farmers in the three provinces. It is surely a strange kind of farming that requires the buying of butter, eggs, canned milk and vegetables and packed cured bacon and meats—things which can, and should be, produced on every farm. Agriculture will not come into its own until this condition ceases to exist.

"During the past season no branch of farming has brought any better return than a few pigs if raised economically and at a minimum expense. Swine prices are lower than they were a year or two ago. They are probably higher than they will be a year hence, but if a litter of pigs consumes on the farm materials which would otherwise be wasted or sold less profitably than as pork, then under such conditions swine production is both profitable and desirable.

"Farmers will be interested to know that a system of grading hogs was recently decided upon by representatives of producers and packers; and the Federal Department of Agriculture (which brought about the conference) has agreed to provide inspectors and have this system established within six or eight months, so that our farmers who will have pigs for sale next fall will be sure of the grading service being in operation by that time. In addition to a system of grading by the Federal Government officials, it has been agreed by the packers to pay a premium on select bacon hogs weighing 180 to 210 pounds as compared with the thick, smooth hogs of the same weight which do not make as acceptable bacon.

"We unhesitatingly recommend moderate production of hogs. We believe that we can profitably double the present production of hogs in Western Canada. We believe that Canada can produce a quality of bacon equal to the best produced by any country. We know that bacon can be shipped to Europe more economically than livestock. We know that it is not excluded by embargoes from the British market, and we expect that our exports of this commodity will increase as the years go by.

"We have not been in the habit of issuing too much advice to our farmers, but we have endeavored always to be able to supply information upon agricultural questions when our farmers ask for it. We believe, however, that the present time is opportune for issuing an announcement of this nature and of recommending greater attention to the production of swine. Our Agricultural Colleges and Experimental Farms have bulletins regarding swine raising and other questions which will gladly be furnished to any interested parties upon request. The swine breeding season for the prairie provinces is drawing near, and steps to procure breeding stock can now be most easily taken. We make, therefore, not a foolish plea for unlimited hog production, but only for what the farmer and the farm can conveniently and profitably produce—a brood sow on every farm." By doing this and other things to make our farms produce as many as possible of the things which are needed to feed the farmer and his family, agriculture will be made more profitable.

Corn, America is Burning Will Save Starving Armenia

Burying the Body of Another Victim of Starvation in the Fields Near Alexandropol, Armenia—Captain Paxton Hibben (insert at top)

The first complete semi-official account of conditions in Transcaucasian Russia, contained in the report of the American Commission of five members sent out by the Near East Relief and published in part in The Nation, has been made public in full. It states that in Armenia "conditions have been found shocking indeed far worse than present conditions in the Volga district of Russia."

"The immediate cause for the present acute famine situation in Armenia," the Commission goes on to state, "was the destruction of some 140 villages by the invading Turks, from which the populations were driven and when all beasts of burden, agricultural and household implements and furniture were removed by the invaders. The evacuation of this portion of Armenia did not take place until April 21, 1921, too late for any extensive crop to be put in, even had the peasants the draught animals and the implements to plough and sow the ground."

According to this report there are a rough total of about 400,000 homeless refugees in Armenia now facing winter without food. Of the 50,000 Armenians concentrated in cities and towns by far the greater part were actually starving, when observed by this Commission early in August. Children were lying dead in the streets and the sick and infirm were dying in great numbers daily. Cholera had set in and was making havoc, partly due to the reduced resistance to disease of those suffering from hunger."

The Commission states that the American Near East Relief is the only agency which stands between the whole population of this country and death this winter.

"Two relief ships loaded with the corn the farmers of the west are burning or feeding to the hogs would see the people of an entire nation through the winter," declared Capt. Paxton Hibben, secretary of the Commission.

"President Harding, in his message to Congress has said: 'It seems to me we should be indifferent to our heart promptings, and out of accord with the spirit which acclaims the Christ-mastide, if we do not give out of our national abundance to lighten this burden of woe upon a people blameless and helpless in famine's peril.'"

"We in America can save a whole people without feeling it or missing a meal. Will we?"

Gardiner retained his sense of location, and slipped silently to the wall. Harris was rushing about the rotten floor in the darkness, crying, "What is it, Allan? For God's sake, what has happened? Are you shot?" and for his own noise he could not hear Gardiner's stealthy movements. Gardiner's hand fell on a log of the wall, and his keen fingers traced their way along it. Five steps, he judged, and the bag would be at his feet. At the fifth step his toe touched an object on the floor; he leaned over and raised the booty in his hand.

By this time his eyes had responded to the intense darkness, and he could discern a square of greyer gloom where the window admitted the night. He moved rapidly and silently toward it, but almost with the last step his foot slipped through a broken spot on the floor, and he staggered and fell. The revolver was thrown from his grasp, but he was able to pitch the bag through the window as he crashed to the floor.

The sound arrested Harris, and before Gardiner could extricate himself the farmer was upon him. At first he seemed to think it was Allan, and felt about in the darkness without attempting to defend himself. This gave Gardiner an opportunity; he was able to clasp his arms about Harris's shins, and with a quick turn of the body, cast his adversary headlong to the floor. At the same moment he freed himself from his entanglement and made another dash for the window.

But Harris, still numbed from his heavy sleep, now realized that some kind of tragedy had occurred, and guessed enough to believe that Allan was a victim. From his prostrate position, with one powerful leg he interrupted Gardiner's flight, and the next moment the two men were rolling on the floor in each other's arms. Harris was much the stronger man of the two, but Gardiner was active and had some skill in wrestling. Besides, Harris had been taken wholly by surprise, and had no idea who his antagonist was, while Gardiner had full knowledge of all the circumstances, and the struggle was less uneven than might have been supposed. Inwardly cursing the luck that had thrust the revolver from his hand, Gardiner sought in the darkness for his adversary's throat, nose, or eyes. Harris, seeing the younger man by the waist, lifted him bodily from the floor and crashed him down again upon it, but the next instant Gardiner had one of his hands in both of his, and bringing his knee down with great force on Harris's elbow, compelled him, at the risk of a broken arm, to turn face downwards on the floor. Gardiner again wrenched violently to break free, but Harris's grip was too much for him, so with the quickness and fury of a tiger he threw himself upon the farmer's back and wrapped his free arm about his throat. With his left hand he cut off Harris's release from the grip of his other hand, and Gardiner instantly took advantage of this move to bring both arms to bear on Harris's throat. Harris began to go badly with the farmer; face down on the floor, he was unable to shake his adversary off, and was losing strength rapidly with his choking. Gardiner no longer sought an opportunity to break away; his blood was up and he was in the fight to the finish, ruled at last by his heart instead of his head. Had he been content merely to retain his present advantage, unconsciousness would soon have overcome his victim, but he tried to improve his grip, and the attempt proved disastrous. His thumb seeking better hold, he caught in it Harris's gasping mouth. Harris was no more depraved than most of mankind, but when fighting for life, and choking to death in the hands of an unknown enemy, he was ready to seize any advantage, and with a great effort he brought his jaws together, upon the intruder.

With a yell of pain Gardiner sprang to his feet, jerking the farmer into a half-sitting posture as he did so, and Harris with a great gasp for air, relinquished his sudden and unexpected advantage. But Gardiner's head was down in confusion, he rushed through the door, half falling over the obstruction as he went, and in an instant was lost in the gloom of the night. For some minutes Harris lay on the floor, recovering his breath. As the oxygen welled back into his lungs he began to realize that, save for his choking, he was unharmed. With returning strength his thought reverted to Allan, and, calling the boy's name, he sprang to his feet. The first thing he got a light. He found matches in his pocket, struck one, and peered eagerly into the gloom as its flickering flame beat back the darkness. A blanket, rolled and stained, lay in the doorway, and within it was a figure that might once have been a man. Harris's heart almost stopped at the sight. "Allan," he gasped, "my boy, Allan." He tiptoed across the crumbling floor toward it, holding the lantern. When he had lighted it he surveyed the little building, and saw Allan's gun lying at the end farthest from the door. Not until then did he think of the money. Allan had been upmost in his mind, and when he thought of Allan, money was no consideration. But now a great wave of understanding rushed in upon him. Yes, the bag was gone. They had been attacked by robbers. Knowledge of their expedition had in some way got to evil ears, and while he slept Allan had been set upon. The boy had emptied his gun—the huddled mass in the doorway told that tale plainly enough—but other robbers had seized the cash and Allan had pursued them empty-handed. They had fired at him as he rushed from the building—that was the flash he saw a few seconds after the first loud report. He was not quite clear as to his own share in the fight, but he saw the general plan of it plainly enough. He began to wonder what had happened to Gardiner and Riles. Had they been shot down as they wound through the woods? This was evidently the work of a gang prepared to stop at nothing. Harris never for a moment suspected his old neighbour of treachery. He was himself a hard, grasping, money-seeking man, but he had a code of honour none the less, and within its limitations none was more honourable than he. To have done what Riles had done would have been quite impossible for John Harris, and because it was impossible for him, its possibility for Riles never suggested itself.

Harris had not yet fully realized the loss of his money. It was overshadowed by the more tragic events of which one evidence lay before him. His anxiety for Allan loomed larger in his mind, although he had little doubt the boy would take proper care of himself, and, even if unarmed, would come back with the money and perhaps with a prisoner. The fact that Allan had not taken his gun was reassuring; if there had been any great danger he would not have left it behind. But he must get out now and aid in the search.

LET GILLET'S EYE DO IT

Make it your handy household assistant. Use it for making soap, in washing dishes, for cleaning sinks, refrigerators, garbage cans, etc., for cleaning clogged drain pipes, for removing grease and smoke stains, for scrubbing floors and tiling. You will find that the systematic use of Gillett's Lye will keep everything around the kitchen and bath room clean, sweet and wholesome. Cleans and disinfects. Is economical and sure in its effects. Has been the standard for over 50 years. It saves labor, time and trouble.

EATS DIRT

As he reached this decision his eye caught a gleam of something shining on the floor. He walked to it and found a revolver, fully loaded except for one chamber, which had been discharged. "This is evidence," said he. "Important evidence." Harris had all the Old Ontario contempt for this kind of weapon, and knew comparatively little about it, but he concluded that the police see it.

Replacing the weapon on the floor, he stole out of the cabin, avoiding the silent obstruction in the doorway. Outside he stood for a moment undecided. The circle of light from his lantern might beacon Allan back to the shanty, but it would also prove a signal to the robbers, if they were still in the vicinity. The night was now very dark, clouds having obscured the stars, and an occasional big drop of rain spat about him. The roar of water came up from the valleys, but above or through that roar suddenly he fancied he heard a sound from the bushes near at hand. He held his breath and listened intently. He half wished he had brought the revolver with him. Yes, there it was again—a human sound, beyond question, half groan, half gurgle. He turned in the direction from which it came and stole quietly forward. Half-a-dozen yards from the building the light revealed, first a shadow, and then a figure lying on the ground. With some trepidation Harris approached. The man's arms had been extended when he fell, and his coat was thrown over his head. Harris stooped and drew it down over the shoulders exposing the face.

It was Allan. The first shock of the revelation almost stopped the heart of the old farmer, and he sat back as one dazed unable to accept the testimony of his own eyes. Then came a panic of uncertainty, and he fell upon the boy, groping wildly for his heart, and at last pressing upon it in an agony of fear. . . . Yes, the beat was there, faint and uneven, but unmistakable. With a sudden surge of returning hope he brought his ear down to the open mouth, fringed with light red foam, and could hear the air labouring in the ravaged lungs. Then came that human sound, half gurgle, half groan; but to Harris, in the reaction from his first paralyzing fear, it was as very music from heaven. His boy still lived, and still should live. (To be continued)

A Stitch in Time

Quick action is the only hope when kidney disease appears.

There is a whole train of dreadfully painful and fatal ailments which soon follow any neglect to get the kidneys right. Among others are rheumatism, lumbago, Bright's disease, hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure.

In Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you will find a treatment which is both quick and thorough.

Mr. C. E. Raymus, Lindale, Alta., writes:—

"I was a great sufferer from kidney disease and lame back for more than years. A friend of mine one day told me of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and acting upon his advice I tried them. After I had taken one box I felt better, so I continued until I used five boxes. By this time I felt as well and strong as ever, and am glad to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anyone suffering as I did."

Will Limit Navies And Restrict Use Of Gas And Submarines

Washington.—The Washington negotiations for limitation of armament reached their consummation when a plenary session of the Arms Conference gave definite and public approval to the two treaties limiting navies and restricting the use of new agencies of warfare.

One of the covenants thus sealed after eleven weeks of debate establishes a fixed ratio of capital ship strength between the five great powers and the other pledges them against unrestricted submarine warfare and use of poison gas. Within a day or two the plenipotentiaries of the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy will formally affix their signatures.

At the same session the Far Eastern wing of the conference moved forward toward completion of its tasks by announcing officially the terms of the Shantung settlement and by giving final approval to nine of the resolutions adopted in committee in regard to Chinese problems.

The agreement on Shantung already has been put into a draft treaty between Japan and China and the other Far Eastern settlements are to be embodied in at least two general conventions which will come before the conference shortly.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Daby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food, giving healthy and natural sleep. China Must Settle Her Own Future

Country Too Big For Foreign Nations To Own

Los Angeles.—China will settle her own future, according to Dr. John C. Ferguson, advisor to the President of the Chinese Republic, in Los Angeles, on his way to Peking from the Washington arms conference. China has enjoyed the opportunity of stating its case to the world.

"Foreign nations will never own China. The country is too big, too potentially powerful; too intelligent. It holds too many brilliant men and women for the nation to remain under foreign domination."

Mother! Open Child's Bowels With California Fig Syrup

Your little one will love the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" even if constipated, bilious, irritable, feverish, or full of cold. A teaspoonful never fails to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the sour bile and undigested food out of the bowels—and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggists for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

HALIFAX EXPLOSION WRECKED HER NERVES

The reader will, no doubt, remember when a few years ago there was a collision in the Halifax, N.S. Harbor and one of the munition ships was blown up, causing great loss of life and laying a large portion of the city in ruins, and causing a great deal of suffering and distress among the inhabitants.

Mrs. Winfield Dill, now of Windsor, N.S., was living in Halifax at that time and went through this trying experience and the shock wrecked her nerves. She writes as follows:—"I was living in Halifax at the time of the explosion, and it wrecked my nerves so that I could not do my housework. I would take such nervous spells I would be under the doctor's care."

I saw Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills advertised, so I took two boxes, and they helped me so much I took six more, and now I am completely relieved. I can recommend them to anyone suffering from heart and nerve trouble."

To all those who suffer from nervous shock we would recommend our

New Record For Vancouver Port

Largest Number of Ships Called During January

Vancouver.—Fifty-three deep sea ships, not including the big vessels that ply between Vancouver and San Francisco, entered and departed at this port during January.

This sets a new mark for Vancouver and it is expected that the end of the year will see the total of deep sea vessels arriving and departing above any preceding year. In November, 1919, fifty-five ships entered and departed, but these included many oil, freight and passenger ships to California ports which now are classed as coastwise.

Last year, to the end of December, 339 ships arrived here compared with 336 vessels during the preceding 12 months.

Berlin.—Two French soldiers were killed and twenty-five were wounded in the disorders at Petersdorf, Silesia, according to the latest reports from Gielwitz. Shots were exchanged while the soldiers were searching houses for arms.

Ottawa.—The amalgamation of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police with the militia, naval and air forces in the proposed department of defence, is creating much interest as to the future of that force. During the last two sessions, when legislation was before parliament to provide for bringing that force out of the west and amalgamating with it the Dominion police with headquarters at Ottawa, there was considerable opposition from members of parliament, who contended that the force had been moved to the east and enlarged until it was becoming something in the nature of "a standing army."

In the house much criticism was launched against the government of the day on the ground that needless expense was being incurred and that the force would have been better occupied had it been kept at its former work of policing only the less settled areas of Western Canada.

In view of this attitude among Liberal Members of Parliament, there is some expectation of the Mounted Police Force being returned to something like its former footing, though so far as can be learned there has been no decision or even discussion by the government as to what its policy in this regard is likely to be.

Note and Comment

It's easy to meet expenses these days. We run onto them every time we turn around.

The Government wants the people to be thrifty. They expect every man to save enough out of his income to pay his income tax.

A Seattle man insured against rain on his wedding day. It rained, but the bridegroom bore up bravely, taking the money in the same philosophical spirit in which his wife had accepted the proceeds from the other showers.

THE KNOCKER'S CREED

I believe that nothing is right. I believe that everything is wrong. I believe that I alone have the right idea. The town is wrong, the things they are doing are wrong and they are doing them in the wrong way anyhow. I believe I could fix things if they would let me. If they don't I will get a lot of other fellows like myself and we will have a law passed to make others do things the way WE want them done.

I do not believe the town ought to grow, it is too big now. I believe in fighting every public improvement and in spoiling everybody's pleasure. I am always to the front in opposing things and never yet have I advanced an idea or supported a movement that would make people happier or add to the pleasure of man, woman or child. I oppose fun and am happiest at a funeral. I believe in starting reforms that will take the joy out of life. It's a sad world and I am glad of it. Amen.—Exc.

THE WALL OF CHINA

In 214 B. C., the Chinese commenced building the Great Wall, which isolated their country from the rest of the world and helped retard their national progress.

The business man who maintains a wall of "dignified reserve" towards the buying public is just as surely retarding his own business growth.

People like to buy from the store that shows its appreciation of their business, gives good value, and courteous, kindly service, with a "come again" invitation.

Your advertisement in "The News" would be a standing invitation to your store. When our readers open up their paper do they see your "bid"?
